“Survival Guide for Precision Manufacturers”

A Workforce Development Challenge

With so many older workers retiring, Connecticut precision manufacturers are having a difficult time finding qualified replacements. In order to survive in the global marketplace, manufacturers need to upgrade the skills of existing employees and find enough young workers with the core knowledge and technical skills to keep pace with modern technological and organizational approaches. The panel discussion will bring light some of the most important issues and opportunities facing the precision manufacturing industry today.
